Project Summary: Lawrence County Community Early Childhood Council (LCCECC) will implement strategic activities that exemplify the significance of school readiness and quality childcare as defined by the Kentucky Department of Education. The council plans to do this by developing and implementing a cooperative plan of action. The council will implement and plan targeted professional development opportunities, public awareness campaigns, holistic family education, as well as events to connect families to resources and community partnerships. The council plans to acquire, utilize and share comprehensive data to ensure effectiveness and fidelity of activities.

Summary of Previous Activities: Lawrence County CECC worked collaboratively with all partners and the community to implement a strategic plan to increase awareness of School Readiness and offer activities to promote growth and learning to help children enter school eager to learn. The Council purchased 110 take-home books for children who participated in Lap Sit and Story Hour at the public library. The 110 books put in the hands of children provided opportunities for parents to read to their child in the home setting and supported families by increasing parent and family participation. The team also hosted a "Family Literacy Night" to increase parent engagement in early literacy activities and to promote literacy activities in homes to increase early literacy behaviors. Data supports the success of the literacy night in that 60 new library cards were issued. Based on data 13% of participating families did not have one person with a library card in the household prior to the event. It was very exciting that Head Start, LC Preschool, First Steps, FRYSC, Child Care and LC Public Library all set up booths and provided students with reading strategies and engaging pre-reading activities. Fifteen parents who attended could not name any reading strategies but were taught how to use predictive questioning, context clues and directionality.

Informational Readiness Posters and 35 Informational Readiness Kits are prepared for parents who request them May-July 2014. We have also developed a checklist of readiness skills and copied the Parent Guide "Building a Strong Foundation for School Success: The Kentucky Early Childhood Standards" for the kits.

Regarding professional development, the LC CECC purchased three ZooPhonics kits (two for Northeast Head Start and one for Trinity Christian Academy Child Care) and five parent packs to be available for checkout at the public library to improve phonemic awareness which will increase parental understanding of a child's developmental needs. Success at LC Preschool facilitated this purchase and plans are to have a parent professional development event on June 13 during the Fizz, Boom, and Read Celebration event. The team determined that readiness data of state preschool (51.8) compared to Head Start (20) and Child Care (40) http://openhouse.education.ky.gov/Data supported the need for all stakeholders to work together and determine what resources were most effective for the benefit of families and building parent resilience in times of stress. The team is excited about all students entering kindergarten with the same experience regarding phonemic awareness.

Regarding STARS rating, one of our Child Care Centers went out of business during the 2013-14 school year and the money allocated for STARS was not utilized.

The Stand Up For Children event was a parent institute on various aspects of parenting including early childhood and what it means to prevent child abuse. There were over 235 in attendance. This event connected parents to resources in the community. Sessions were held for parents covering the following topics: Car Seat Safety, Special Education & Preschool, Behavior Management, Water Safety, Abusive Head Trauma, Home and Fire Safety and Social Media Safety. Parents earned a certificate at the end of the Institute based on how many sessions they attended. Protection and Permanency worked with us to engage families that were looking for parenting classes. Those families that did not need parenting classes earned a certificate as well, but they also were able to earn tickets for door prizes donated by local community partners. This event will build parent resilience in times of stress and create strong social connections. Parents also received information about readiness and behavior.

LC Preschool applied for the Brigance screener and will begin using it in 2014-15 to help inform and share data with parents. The Governor's office purchased one kit for LC and it was designated for the child care center- Trinity Christian Academy. This will increase parent access to readiness data prior to the kindergarten years.

Two members of the LC CECC will be attending the Ready Kids Conference in June with plans to bring back information and resources to the LC CECC.

Parent Academy/ Kiddie College provides information, education, and training on a variety of topics for parents, grandparents, and family members caring for children and young people in Lawrence County as well as academic enhancement for children.

Area agencies and organizations can work with Louisa Elementary Family Resource Center to become a sponsoring partner for Parent Academy/Kiddie College. The goal is to educate families and work with partners to incentivize achievements for parents and students. School readiness is a priority for Parent Academy and equipping families to meet the needs of young children. Parent Academy/Kiddie College has worked with over 75 families in the 2014-2015 school year.

Build Your Nest Babyfest was developed to bring awareness of various aspects of parenting for new and expectant mothers. The event focuses on various topics each year with a guest speaker giving a short presentation. This year we focused on breastfeeding, Carolyn McGinn, nutritionist for Lawrence county Health Department spoke to mothers and families about the benefits of doing so. Families were able to visit approximately 20 vendors that handed out information and resources for new parents. While visiting vendors door prizes were handed out that were donated by various community partners. Each expectant mother left with a door prize. The council did not spend money on this event.

Lawrence County CECC has partnered with Northeastern Alliance CECC to maintain a website. Jeff Evans with Child Care Aware assists the council with this project.

The following events are scheduled for May and June: Readifest, Kindercamp, and the Early Childhood Celebration Event (Fizz, Boom, and Read).

Summary of Supportive Data and Community Needs: Lawrence County has one public school system, one private school which is STARS rated and recognized as a child care provider. Lawrence County also has a Head Start program, which operates within the Louisa West Elementary School building and is STARS rated. There are other family and private childcare in-home providers. Kentucky KIDS Count data reveals that 19.5% of children in Lawrence County are experiencing early childhood obesity based on 2012 data and 67% of the children in the county are eligible for free or reduced-priced meals (2011). The median household income for 2011 was $32,275. Eighteen percent of babies born in 2009 were low-birth weight (less than 5.5 lbs.). In 2011, there were 211 investigations of child abuse/neglect and 343 reports to DCBS for suspected abuse/neglect while 84% of the victims had income risk factors present, 60% had substance abuse factors present and 27% had mental health factors present. In 2011, the district had 153 preschoolers in publicly funded preschool which is 35% of the preschool population. It is important to note that only 42.0% of third grade students in Lawrence County Schools were determined to be proficient in math and 54.3 % in reading in 2012-13.

The 2014 Early Childhood Profile for Lawrence County reveals that Lawrence County children are scoring below the state level in the areas of cognitive/general knowledge, physical well-being, self-help and social-emotional development based on Brigance screening results administered in 2013 as students entered kindergarten. According to the report only 34.6% of Lawrence County children are ready for kindergarten which is a 15 point increase from last school year. All three public schools in the county participated in the screening and there were 246 kindergarteners screened. The report reveals that 55.5% of children in Lawrence County are below 150% poverty and 72.5% are below 200% of poverty. The county had a Head Start enrollment of 36 in 2013 and public kindergarten enrollment of 246.

The data above along with FRYSC survey of community partners supports the need for parent trainings and family engagement activities as well as the need for strengthening the learning environments of current child care partners. The team agrees that the data provided by the Brigance screening assisted the public school in targeting educational needs and it would benefit the other centers/providers to have access or methods of acquiring developmental data so that school readiness can be advanced across the district.

Strategic Plan: Forming of a new early childhood council in 2013-14 in Lawrence County was a worthwhile task. Many community partners have come together to collaborate on this new adventure. Several different stakeholders have taken initiative and the council continues with efforts to recruit members. The council's focus is to become the go-to for all things Early Childhood related. The council has noted that there are various activities, organizations and leaders that are doing great things related to early childhood within the community, and supporting each other will be essential to the success of the entire community. It is a unified desire of the council to build upon these events as well as fill in where there may be gaps.

The council is composed of various members from the community who represent different backgrounds within the county. We have members from the school district, Northeast Head Start, Lawrence County Preschool, Family Resource and Youth Service Centers, Trinity Christian Academy, Lawrence County Health Department, and Lawrence County Public Library. It is evident that with this diverse background of members the council will have a comprehensive approach that will induce methodic and significant changes to the county's early childcare environment.

The fiscal agent for this endeavor, Lawrence County Board of Education, has been a catalyst for many changes within the community for the last 5 years. Thus, having the Board of Education serve as the fiscal agent seemed imperative. The Board of Education has also had extensive experience in administering and overseeing funds from various sources. Because of this experience, the council's financial stability and successful operation is assured.

Achieving a high quality early childhood climate is the goal of the council. In order to achieve this goal, the council must build innovative and collaborative partnerships that promote school readiness for children and families across settings and experiences. The council is taking an approach that will be tailored to meet the needs of Lawrence County.

Plan Activities: In order to maximize its dollars toward improving early childhood development in the county, the Council will continue to look for additional sources of funding through grants and local organizations to help sustain efforts. Active participation by the council in these efforts will ensure promotion of the programs on various levels, helping families, child care workers, the business community and the public gain a greater understanding of early child care and its impact on child development. The following goals and activities have been prioritized by the LCCECC.

Goal 1 - Environments: Increase the capability of local early childhood centers to support healthy learning environments and promote professional development of staff.

- Lap Sit at the Lawrence Co. Public Library $200
- Story Hour at the Lawrence Co. Public Library $200

- STARS Ratings $300
- ZooPhonics Support $200

Goal 2 – Supporting Families: To provide parent support and promote family engagement in readiness activities in the home and community environments with a focus on advancing literacy and numeracy skills; to connect parents to community services and resources.

- Celebration of the Young Child $200
- Build Your Nest Babyfest $200
- Posters and Informational Readiness Kits for At-Risk Children $200
- Parent Academy/Kiddie College $800
- Stand Up For Children $1,000
- Early Learning Camp $800
- Family Fitness Night $100
- Fairy Tale Family Literacy Night $600
- Family Math Night $500
- Zoo Phonics Kits for Parents (Check-out at Public Library) $200

Goal 3- Data: To attain, utilize and share data for the promotion of early childhood readiness in our community.

- Readifest and Readifest Kits $800
- Birgance $500
- Early Childhood Media Blitz $0

Goal 4- Professional Development: To utilize best practices and equip persons with the strategies and skills needed to facilitate school readiness across community early childhood settings.

- Professional Development $1,800
- CECC Conference $500

(Note all materials, manipulative and supplies mentioned in the budget must be non- consumable and they must be marked as purchased by CECC Kids Now funds.)

Communication Plan

The council is dedicated to reaching each child, parent and community partner in Lawrence County that has a stake in early childhood development/education. The council has drafted the following communication plan that will enable all of these stakeholders to be aware of the activities and messages the LCCECC is trying to convey. The council is committed to distributing the monthly communication toolkit that the GOEC provides through the following:

ITEM ONE: DEVELOP PROFILES ON VARIOUS ONLINE AND SOCIAL MEDIA OUTLETS

The council will maintain a presence on http://www.kidsfirstcecc.org/ in partnership with the "Kids First" Collaborative Community Early Childhood Councils of Northeast Kentucky, as well as on Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram. These pages and websites will be updated at least monthly according to the GOEC communication toolkit with information pertaining to the council, school readiness and community calendar events as well as other activities that impact early childhood development/communication in the community. The council will utilize the monthly communication toolkit to present a strong unified message to the local community, business/elected leaders, and local media outlets. Lastly, the website will have a link to available resources, activities and services in the county.

Baseline: Lawrence County CECC has partnered with Northeastern Alliance CECC to maintain a website and had developed online presence.

Expected Results: The LCCECC expects to access at least 20% of the county population through online or social media as measured by numbers of visits to the website, email addresses collected for a data base and friends on Facebook, Twitter or Instagram.

ITEM TWO: DEVELOP BROCHURES

Brochures that have general information regarding the council, early childhood data and activities will be designed and printed. The council will disseminate these at community events for the purpose of presenting a strong unified message to the community and increasing the awareness of school readiness needs and opportunities. Contact information and website links will be provided.

Baseline: LC has produced many flyers for events and advertises ECEE events in local newspapers. The LCCECC handed out over 500 flyers for events in 2013-14. Flyers were made by and printed by community partners.

Expected Results: The LCCECC will increase the use of published media and develop more strategic brochures.

ITEM THREE: UTILIZE LOCAL MEDIA OUTLETS

The council will share information about activities, parental/educational best practices, and other early childhood topics through local media outlets including Ignite 92.3, channel 15, The Levisa Lazer and the Big Sandy News.

Baseline: The LC CECC utilizes radio, local TV stations and advertisements to inform the community about events and opportunities.

Expected Results: Every planned event will be announced through local media outlets this will increase participation.

ITEM FOUR: PRINT EVENT FLYERS AND UTILIZE SCHOOL MESSENGER

Event flyers will be printed by event planners and disseminated via email or hand delivered to LCCECC members who will distribute them to families prior to an event. In addition, the LC School Messenger system will also be prompted to make phone calls to currently enrolled students of LC public school making announcements of events related to school readiness activities. The first call will be conducted 3 business days before event, then again 1 day before event.

Baseline: The LC CECC uses school messenger to announce events so that all parents in the school district receive telephone calls regarding events. Community partners printed over 500 flyers for events in 2013-14.

Expected Results: Events will be made known to all community partners and families associated with the partners by sharing information through flyers (emailed or distributed in person). The council has access to Lawrence County public school families (approximately 2,500 students), Trinity Christian Academy (approximately 50 families), North East Head Start (approximately 40 students), Lawrence County Health Department (over 100 families), and Lawrence County Public Library (over 100 families). Information will be shared with all families through this effort.
